

BAXTER SPRINGS NEWS.

M. H. GARDNER, Editor and Publisher.

Entered at the post-office at Baxter Springs, Kansas, as second class matter.

SATURDAY, JUNE 21, 1890.

The Inter-Ocean says the "original package" was sin.

The democratic state convention will be held at Wichita September 9.

Ex-President R. B. Hayes will be at the Chautauqua assembly at Ottawa and talk to the old soldiers.

Franklin county boasts that it has $80,000 less of mortgage indebtedness than it had two months ago.

Kansas City papers are making war on the census enumerators in that city, claiming that they are missing thousands that should be counted, and demanding a recount.

The Osage Free Press says that in that county during the last three months the real estate mortgages released have exceeded those put on record three to one.

The Lawrence Journal states that a man in Connecticut sold a farm the other day for $1 an acre. Those fellows are bound to get to Kansas if they have to give their land away.

Thomas A. Wedge of Elkhart county, Indiana, has been married five times within the past year. A few days ago he was divorced from his fourth wife and married the fifth Mrs. Wedge on the same day.

By the report sent out by the bureau of agriculture at Washington on wheat it is shown that Kansas stands at the head on average of area, and eighth on condition of crop, Pennsylvania taking the lead on this average.

The Kansas City Gazette gives the following pointer for boys: "A gentleman applied to the Gazette office to know where to get a boy for a few days work. 'I don't want one of those cigarette suckers, but a boy with something in him,' he explained."

Three boys living in Kearney, Nebraska, are arranging to start around the world on bicycles. It is expected that they will make the trip with $500, which the business men of that place are making up for them. They will start in August.

Wichita Republic: A Sedgwick county farmer shipped two car loads of sweet potatoes to St. Paul, Minn., last week where he received $1.80 per bushel for them. He sold the remainder of his crop here for $1 per bushel. Sweet potatoes never fail in this valley.

"Hitch your wagon to a star" is the motto of the graduating class at Manhattan this year. They are graduated as accomplished and practical farmers, so supposed. The old-fashioned farmer will, however, continue to hitch his wagon to a pair of switch-tailed mares.

The Rev. Bernard Kelley says: "Kansas stands as a rock against which the billows will dash in vain. She is the lighthouse of the nation, may I not say of the world? She does not follow in the path of any—she leads. The victory is coming and sooner than many think."

The Kansas state house, so long in process of completion, will be completed by the close of 1890. The entire structure when ready for occupancy will have cost in the neighborhood of $1,800,000 and will be one of the most imposing public buildings west of the Mississippi river.

Lots of Kansas farmers are buying new machinery this summer, because they didn't put their last year's machines under the sheds. There is nothing that pleases a manufacturer so much as to have a farmer economize by refusing to buy lumber with which to build sheds for his farming utensils.

A few days ago while Congressman Perkins was making a speech in which he scored some of the members of the house for saying that Kansas was hopelessly in debt, a Jayhawker in the gallery forgot the proprieties of the occasion and place, and yelled at the top of his altitudinous voice: "Bully for Kansas."

Michigan has paid off a debt of $7,000,000 since 1890, and is now absolutely free from debt.

Independence Tribune: H. W. Young of the Star and Kansas is deservingly of thanks from publishers for having demonstrated in the courts that a man who takes a newspaper from the post-office is liable to pay for the same. The case was that of Young vs. C. A. Clotfelter, and was for five and one-half years subscription to the Kansas and was tried in Wilson county. Mr. Clotfelter denied subscribing for it or taking it out of the office, but admitted it was taken out. The jury was out only ten minutes and returned a verdict of $11 and costs, which amounted to about $40.

Burlington Nonpareil: The value of money for hire or loaning cannot be destroyed or impaired without similarly affecting the value of all other property. That is to say, if any given sum of money loaned shall bear only two, three or six per cent. interest, an equal sum cannot be invested in a farm, in cattle, or in any other industry or business and assure a profit that is the equivalent of twice or three such a rate of interest. It is a funny notion that possesses many people and recently arisen oracles of finance that two thousand dollars when loaned for interest shall not earn more than six per cent. interest, or enough to pay only double the amount of taxes against the same while two thousand dollars invested in a farm, in cattle or in other property shall or will produce infinitely greater profit, after deducting all expenses incurred. Legislation will never bring about such a condition.

The Manhattan Nationalist says: We heard last week of a young man who after being two years at the agricultural college, persuaded his father to turn over to him for one year the charge of the farm, which the father had been carrying on for years under a heavy debt, and the result was that in one year he had lifted the entire debt of $2,500 and had stock enough left for a fair start.

A Suit Founded on Johnstown's Disaster. The case of Farney T. Tarball against the Pennsylvania railroad company was taken up before Judge White in common pleas court this week at Pittsburgh, Pa.

This is the first case to come to trial arising out of the Johnstown disaster of a year ago. Mr. Tarball, then a resident of Cleveland, bought tickets from that city to Tyrone, Pa. He gave these tickets to his wife and three children and on the morning of May 30 saw them start upon their journey. The family was upon the train which reached Conemaugh Junction some time previous to the flood and was washed away by the torrent. Mrs. Tarball and children were all drowned and their bodies have not yet been recovered. Suit is brought by the husband to recover $50,000. He claims the company was negligent in not removing the train to a place of safety. It is alleged that the company and its agent upon the train had six hours notice of the impending danger and held the train at Conemaugh that time before the accident occurred in which Mrs. Tarball and her children lost their lives.

The trial of the case will probably last over a week and each side will probably have at least 100 witnesses. It was thought that after a personal inspection of the scene of the disaster the jurors would be enabled to get a much clearer comprehension of the testimony. The present is a test case and upon its conclusion are hanging numerous actions of a like character.

The First Step. Perhaps you are run down, can't eat, can't sleep, can't think, can't do anything to your satisfaction, and you wonder what ails you. You should heed the warning, you are taking the first step into nervous prostration. You need a nerve tonic and in Electric Bitters you will find the exact remedy for restoring your nervous system to its normal, healthy condition. Surprising results follow the use of this great nerve tonic and alterative. Your appetite returns, good digestion is restored and the liver and kidneys resume healthy action. Try a bottle. Price 50 cents at all Drug Stores.

Henry M. Stanley has been tendered and has accepted the governorship of the Congo Free States. He will not enter upon his duties until the beginning of 1891.

HOUSEHOLD BREVITIES.

—English Rhubarb Tart.—Prepare the fruit as for using when stewed, fill a pudding-dish with the prepared fruit, cover with family pie-crust or puff-paste, and bake; serve with sugar and cream.

—For burns, equal parts of lime-water and linseed oil mixed together and applied to the burn will take out the inflammation. If the burn is deep, wash it off with warm milk and water twice a day; then renew the dressing.

—When ironing if a starchy deposit attaches itself to the iron, it may readily be removed by sprinkling a small handful of common salt on a piece of old carpet or thick cloth, and passing the hot iron over it several times.

—To cook asparagus, boil tender, either in tied bunches, or broken in pieces as preferred. As it cooks quickly, twenty minutes will suffice. Then drain, lay it on slices of moistened and buttered toast, and pour over it a thickened cream gravy.

—Orange Icing.—Add the grated yellow rind of one orange to one cup of powdered sugar, add a tablespoonful of boiling water and sufficient orange juice to moisten. Spread this over the cake and stand aside a few moments to harden.—Troy Times.

—Nicely made cranberry jelly made sweeter than for eating with meats, forms an excellent combination with blanc mange. Put the jelly first into the mold, then a layer of blanc mange, and so on until the mold is full. Set it away to cool and serve with whipped cream or simply cream and sugar.

—Graham Pop-Overs.—Three eggs, 1½ cups Graham flour, half cup white flour, 2 cups milk, pinch salt. Beat the eggs very light, whites and yolks together. Add the milk and salt, and sift in the flour rather slowly, to prevent lumping. Strain the batter through a sieve, and fill heated cream pans. Bake in a quick oven and eat immediately.—Harper's Bazar.

—Few apartments of the home are so well worth paying well for as the fixtures of the bed springs and mattress, however good the mattress may be, made of the very best and most expensive hair it is wise to have it remade at a responsible, first-class house at least once in two or three years. It pays for the day's trouble, and the two or three dollars' expense.—N. Y. Observer.

DOMESTIC HAPPINESS.

It Exists Only Where the Housekeeper Is Also a Home-Maker.

Home-keeping is something more than house-keeping. Wherever there is a man of our race there is, if not a home, the need of a home, and wherever there is a true lady of the Anglo-Saxon lineage there is a "loaf-giver," a home-maker and home-preserver. As all the rivers empty into the sea, so the sea forever feeds the sources of every stream, so all colleges, schools, churches, all arts and trades, continually give up their results to the home and are, in turn, dependent upon the home. It is the level of the sea that fixes the measure of the mountain tops; the level of the homes of a race measures all the institutions of the race. Whatever is rooted up or borne down in the vast progress of civilization, the mother will survive, and will give her stamp to life.

It is a woman's peculiar province to create beauty and order in the habits and associations of daily existence. She takes the raw material, in the shape of her husband's income, great or small, and from it she evolves as much comfort, as many legitimate gratifications, and as many of the finer uses of a home as she can. There is a wide range for many varieties of skill and knowledge. In one home we see the results of thorough domestic training; the mother possesses all the resources of a wise and practical system of household management. Another covers the unprepared intuition of a woman, who loves because she loves and makes a home without previous training, as a bird builds a nest. Our home-keeping shall not show inhospitality to woman's thought regarding home matters and whatever concerns humanity concerns the home.

In these days materialism is knocking at every door. It has even found its way within the sanctuary, and invades the very nursery. To wives and mothers it offers the insidious plea that modern civilization will relieve her of her cares. Multiplied conveniences and trained servants are to be the important facts of her home; she is to "preside," ruling only as a queen rules when her constitutional advisers govern her as well as the kingdom. This is a false theory of home rule in the family, whatever it may be in the State. Home keeping implies an earnest and responsible charge of sacred interests. In the administration of home affairs the house mother can trust no one between herself and God.

The cooking, sewing, furnishing, are all good, useful things, to be done more or less by proxy, according to circumstances, but all worth knowing about. The necessary precautions for health in modern dwellings, the secret of nutrition for infants, for the aged, as well as for those who can enjoy all the varied dietary of "a good table," the wisest methods in the mental development of early childhood; these are important branches that belong to home keeping.—Dora Read Goodale, in N. Y. Independent.
